

I Just Want To Think About It

3 Biggest Fears of Buying a Home

Job Stability

Getting in Over Your Head

Commitment

I hesitate to make a list
Of all the countless deals I've missed;
Bonanzas that were in my grip...
I watched them through my fingers slip;
The windfalls that I should have bought
Were lost because I over thought.
I thought of this and I thought of that.
I could have sworn I smelled a rat.
And while I thought things over twice,
Another grabbed them at the price.
It seems I always hesitate
Then make my mind up much too late.
A very cautious man am I,
And that is why I never buy.
At times a teardrop drowns my eye
For deals I had, but did not buy.
And now life's saddest words I pen
"If only I'd invested then!"
